April 27 – May 4, 2025

In support of many requests from the Ghost Ranch community, we are happy to offer this photography class focusing on darkroom techniques. Thank you so much for your interest, and I look forward to seeing you in April. The following is provided to help you prepare for your class.

The darkroom is well ventilated and equipped, with five enlarger bays. For those of you who want more darkroom time, you may forego scheduled shoots or utilize it in the evenings.

April typically has warm and sunny days, cooling down at night, and rain is a possibility. Checking the internet just before you pack is recommended. Bring clothing to dress in layers, a jacket/sweater for evenings, rain coat or poncho, and sturdy boots/shoes for hiking and comfortable shoes/slippers for periods of standing in the darkroom. To protect from the sun, bring sunblock, a hat with a good brim and water bottle for hydration. It's a dry climate, so lotion is a good idea.

Bring your camera(s) (test if they haven't been shot in the last month or so), sturdy tripods, cable release, orange filters (yellow or red work also), Kodak T-Max 400 film (TMY), camera manuals, and a camera bag with room for a lunch and clothing storage (water bottles need to be outside of the main compartment). A small red LED helps in the darkroom. Don't forget extra batteries and micro-fiber cloths for lens cleaning. Darkroom supplies are provided (three rolls of 35mm film and paper developers, fix, negative sleeves, 5x7 and 8x10 photographic paper, etc.). Bring a notebook and something for negative storage. Usually, 2 or 3 rolls are what is normally shot, although you can get frisky. Hand check any additional film in the airport (don't pack the rolls in your suitcases).

We will be hiking, sometimes on uneven terrain, so make sure your footwear is comfortable. Have an idea of what you want to shoot on Ranch – favorite locations or subjects. Review the great B&W Southwest tradition online, in your libraries, or in museum or galleries.
